

Help Erin Carry the Torch in the 2008 Beijing Olympics

We lost Const. Rob Plunkett recently. His niece wants to carry the Olympic torch in his memory and has gone through great lengths to be 1 of the 18 finalists in this worldwide competition! It's now a public vote. Her name is: Erin Roy.

Vote for her at the following site: www.lenovo.com/torch

Thank you,
Chris McDonough

Hi Everyone

I am excited to announce that I recently submitted a short essay to a contest sponsored by Lenovo (a Chinese computer company that recently purchased the IBM line of PC's). They have chosen my essay as one of the 20 finalists from 11 countries to compete in Phase II of the contest. The Grand Prize winners will get the opportunity to carry the Olympic torch over one of the legs of the 2008 Olympic Torch Relay across China.

To win Phase II I have submitted a 30-second video to the www.lenovo.com/torch website to be judged by the general public. The three winners that will be chosen will be the ones with the highest number of votes.

Please take a minute to go to the website and cast your vote.

If chosen to win I would like to dedicate my relay run to my uncle Robert Plunkett. Constable Robert Plunkett, an Ontario Officer with York Region Police Services, was a leader in both the community and to the Special Olympics organization. Constable Plunkett was involved with the Law Enforcement Torch Run for over 15 years and the 1997 World Winter Games.

Through his long standing support of the organization he also served as the Chairman for the 2000 Special Olympics Ontario Provincial Games. Through his leadership over $1 million was raised for the Special Olympic Games. In addition, as a result of his devotion and support the Law Enforcement Torch Run has grown significantly in Ontario raising funds and awareness for athletes with an intellectual disability.

My uncle Rob was killed in the line of duty on August 2, 2007, while making an arrest in conjunction with an automobile air-bag theft. Rob is an inspiration to myself, my family and the community. I would like to honour his legacy with this once in a lifetime chance to carry the Olympic torch.

If you are compelled, please don't hesitate to forward this e-mail to anyone you know. I will need all of the support I can get (literally around the world!) to win.

Thank you in advance for helping me realize this dream,
Erin Roy
